Food Bank Urges Fans to Host SOUPER BOWL Parties

Community Urged to Collect and Donate During Game

DURHAM – Football fans have one more stand off to endure in February. The Food Bank of Central & Eastern North Carolina is challenging communities in its 34-county service area to show TEAM SPIRIT and COMMUNITY SPIRIT by collecting or donating at parties this year during Super Bowl XLII on Sunday, February 3rd. Whether you are a New England Patriots fan or a New York Giants fan, everyone wins in the Food Bank's S-O-U-P-E-R BOWL!

The Food Bank of Central & Eastern North Carolina at Durham is located on 708 Gilbert Street. The Durham branch distributes food to partner agencies (rescue missions, soup kitchens, food pantries, after school programs, elderly nutrition programs) in Chatham, Durham, Granville, Orange, Person and Vance counties. Fight hunger in your community by collecting or bringing cans of food to a Super Bowl Party or by making an Online Virtual Food Drive Donation.

"The need is constant. Food collected during major food drives go right back out the door to feed those at risk of hunger," said Peter Werbicki, President/CEO of the Food Bank of Central & Eastern North Carolina. "Our Souper Bowl is a way to have a party with a specific focus and to keep the community engaged in our mission to provide food resources throughout the year."

Go to the Food Bank's Web site at www.foodbankcenc.org to participate in the Souper Bowl virtual food drive or collect non-perishable food items at your party, or both.
